(D) City O' City

This bohemian hangout is a vegetarian restaurant with a creative menu with novel twists on traditional dishes as well as its own creations.

(E) Amethyst Coffee

Carefully crafted coffee drinks & teas served in a modern atmosphere with a patio & fire pit.

(F) Denver Central Library

The Denver Central Library acts as an architectural landmark. The original building was designed by Burnham Hoyt in 1955 during the post WWII period and in 1995 renowned architect, Michael Graves designed the addition with postmodernism exterior elements.

★ Areas of Opportunity: New/Planned Projects

The Golden Triangle Partnership officially formed in January to push for the neighborhood as an "international destination for art and culture." Several parcels throughout the Golden Triangle neighborhood are currently dedicated to large surface parking lots stimulating a desolate environment. Part of the non-profit's plan includes urban infill opportunities which will add developments of much higher densities. Several projects are currently planned or under development. Some of those projects include:

★ Denver Art Museum Expansion

The Art Museum is renovating its iconic North Building to unify the museum campus and upgrade the older North Building to align with the Hamilton Building's 21st-century systems.

★ Speer Boulevard

Speer Boulevard is named after Robert W. Speer who served as Denver's mayor during the City Beautiful era. Parcels along this busy corridor are quickly transforming with glass-covered high to mid-rise condominiums and apartments buildings. The corridor's special relationship with Cherry Creek and the Trail provides a favorable location for new development. Several new developments can be seen in the process of construction.
